Rheumatology and Gastroenterology Specialties

Biosimilars now available

Your patients require specialized care. We're here to deliver the specialty pharmaceuticals you need to help your patients. We have expanded our portfolio to provide you with more access to products to support improved patient outcomes and reduced patient costs. We now carry biosimilars for rheumatology and gastroenterology patients.

What are Biosimilars?

Biosimilars are biological products that are developed to be highly similar to an approved FDA biologic. Biosimilars are not generic drugs. They are clinically engineered to provide the same clinical efficacy as the reference or original biologic. Biosimilars go through a regulated review and approval process through the FDA.

Protecting and improving Medicare for our nation's seniors

Under Executive Order #13890, titled Protecting and Improving Medicare for Our Nation's Seniors (specifically under Section 5), the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), plans to propose reform to the Medicare program that would significantly impact Physician Assistants (PAs) and Advanced Practicing Registered Nurses (APRNs).

On January 17, 2020, the American College of Cardiology provided a written response to CMS outlining specific examples of cardiologic services that APPs should be able to provide under general physician supervision. Read the ASC Letter.

Drug Supply Chain Security Act (DSCSA)

On Nov. 27, 2020, primary care providers and other dispensers may only accept products with valid Product Identifier.

Visit the FDA DSCSA Website for more information. McKesson Medical-Surgical is DSCSA compliant.

DSCSA is administered by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and has these objectives:

- Pharmaceutical drug integrity
- Traceability of drugs through supply chain
- A system of unique product identifiers
- Robust transaction history and information
- Efficient verification requests, responses to suspect/ illegitimate products, effective recalls as needed
- National licensure standards for wholesale distributors and third-party logistics organizations
